"The author of this book had sins of two generations before her visited upon her. Her parents and grandparents, the very people she should have reasonably expected to shield her from the evils of this world, stole her childhood through emotional, physical and sexual abuse from the time she was very young. Amazingly, today Bonnie Bright Bradshaw is a strong woman of faith, determined that her cycle of abuse will not be passed on to the generations after her. By allowing Christ in her heart and giving Him complete control of her life, she learned of the ultimate truth of the mercy of God - her scars are beautiful to him."
